

Copilot

You can run the `initexmf --update-fndb` command from any location in the command prompt. It doesn't matter whether you're in the Desktop directory, the root directory, or any other directory. The command updates the filename database for the entire TeX system, not just for the current directory. So feel free to run this command from wherever is most convenient for you. Happy LaTeXing!